

Biography - Dejan Jovanović, PhD

He was born on September 24, 1981 in Šabac. He finished elementary school and secondary school of economics in Leposavić with overall grade mark "A". He enrolled in the Faculty of Economics, University of Kragujevac, Department of Accounting and Finance, in the school year 2000/2001 as a regular student of undergraduate studies and passed all the exams from the curriculum, with the grade point average of 9.24. He graduated on February 22, 2005 on the subject Special Bookkeeping. During his studies, he was awarded several times on the occasion of the Faculty Day. He enrolled in doctoral studies at the Faculty of Economics, University of Kragujevac, study program Economics, module Accounting and Business Finance. He defended his doctoral dissertation titled "Management Accounting Support to the Process of Environmental Management" in 2017.

He started his professional career on February 1, 2006 in the company "Metalac Cookware" in Gornji Milanovac, as an Independent Procurement Officer, import sector. Since October 15, 2008, he has worked at the Faculty of Economics in Kragujevac as a Teaching Associate for the narrow scientific field of Accounting, Auditing, and Business Finance, courses Management Accounting and Cost Accounting. He was elected Teaching Assistant in 2010. In February 2018, he was elected Assistant Professor, courses Management Accounting and Cost Accounting.

He is the author of a number of papers published in national and international journals. He has presented works at national and international conferences. He is a member of the Editorial Board of the journal "Economic Signals", categorized as a journal of national importance (M53).

For the purpose of professional development, he attended a number of courses, such as: Academic skills course, Development of pedagogical competence of university teachers and associates and Statistical processing and data analysis training. He speaks some English and Russian, and uses Office applications (Access, Excel, Power Point, Word), as well as Internet.

The spheres of his scientific interest are management and accounting support to business operations, cost and performance accounting, environmental management accounting and integrated cost management.